- sportswear, down jackets, denim clothing, casual wear
- baby and children’s clothing, knitwear, knitwear accessories
- general clothing fabrics, special novelty fabrics, special functional fabrics, environmentally friendly recycled textiles and non-woven textiles
- clothing accessories such as buttons, lace, webbing, Velcro, zippers and hooks and loops.
The economic situation in Europe was severely impacted by the epidemic in 2020, leading to a sharp decline in the European clothing retail market. The EU’s imports of clothing from around the world also fell by 11.38%. However, this challenge for European brands may force them to look at more efficient, flexible and low-cost supply chain solutions leading to cooperation with Asian manufacturers, known for scale advantages, cost advantages and rapid response capabilities, to cope with market uncertainty and change.

European customer interest in Asian manufacturers is not constant and can be affected by other factors such as trade policies, exchange rate fluctuations, consumer preferences and social responsibility. For example, due to US tariffs on Chinese goods, some Chinese manufacturers have transferred orders to other Asian countries such as Vietnam, India and Bangladesh, which may affect interest and choice of manufacturers in these countries. In addition, as European consumers pay more attention to environmental protection and sustainable development, certain European brands may now attach more importance to the social responsibility and environmental standards of Asian manufacturers, or choose suppliers closer to the European market such as Turkey and Morocco.

Despite the current economic conditions, Asian manufacturers still have possible opportunities to cooperate with European brands, but may also need to improve their competitiveness and adaptability to meet the changing needs and expectations of European brands and markets.

RAPID RESPONSE
Asian manufacturers have flexible and agile production models, can quickly adjust their product structure and quantity according to changes in the European market demand, shorten their production cycle and delivery time, provide timely and accurate services for European brands and buyers. Asian manufacturers also use information technology and logistics networks to strengthen their information communication with the European market and logistics distribution, improve their service quality and level.

COST-EFFECTIVENESS
Asian manufacturers have lower labor costs, raw material costs, and transportation costs, can provide competitive prices and favorable conditions, bring more profit space and value to European brands and buyers. Asian manufacturers also optimise their supply chain management to reduce their inventory risks and operating costs, improve their efficiency and profit margins.

PRODUCT QUALITY
Asian manufacturers have advanced production technology and equipment, strict quality control and testing systems, can ensure product quality and safety, and comply with European market regulations and standards. Asian manufacturers also continuously introduce and cultivate professional technical and management talents to improve their production capacity and level.

DESIGN INNOVATION
Asian manufacturers keep up with international fashion trends, develop creative and personalised product designs based on their own cultural characteristics and market characteristics, and meet the diverse and personalised needs of European consumers. Asian manufacturers also maintain close communication and cooperation with European brands and buyers, welcome their feedback and suggestions, and continuously improve and optimise their product design.

ASIA APPAREL EXPO will invest more resources in a series of comprehensive publicity and promotion campaigns to attract more powerful buyers from Europe for exhibitors, especially Germany, Spain, France, the United Kingdom, as well as the Nordic and Eastern European countries as the key target areas for promotion. The expo will invite well-known European industry buyers who have visited this exhibition in the past, including ZALANDO, TAKKO FASHION, HUGO BOSS, GUCCI, NEW YORKER, S. OLIVER in addition to the trade buyers who have previously attended and are new to the expo.

Press releases to major news media and promotion through special reports, exclusive interviews and promotional publications.

Local Clothing Industry Chambers of Commerce in Europe will be contacted to organise buyer groups to attend.
